REPUBLICAN PARTY SEEK NEW LEADER

Hoover Eliminated As Future Presidential Candidate

SPECIAL TO CHINA MAIL.
(By Telegraph, Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1894. Received December 22, 9.58 a.m.)

Washington, To-day.
It is authoritatively learned that the Republican Party leaders, in a secret meeting, have decided that Mr. Herbert Hoover, who from 1928 to 1932 was Republican President of the United States, is virtually eliminated as the 1936 candidate for the Presidency. — United Press, per S.C. Gold Bar Co.

U.S. RECOVERY STABLE BUSINESS IN NOVEMBER.

Money Increased.

SPECIAL TO CHINA MAIL.
(By Telegraph, Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1894. Received December 21, 9.58 a.m.)

Washington, To-day.
The December bulletin of the Federal Reserve Board states that business activity in the United States regained stability in November and that money has increased, due to increased pay-roll requirements and retail trade rather than to hoarding.

The bulletin reports a U.S.$50,000,000 loss in European gold holdings during the first three weeks of November. "The increased private, but unreported, gold holdings are more than sufficient to absorb the new production." — United Press, per S.C. Gold Bar Co.

U.S. GOLD FUND INCREASED.

Purchases Total Only $16,976,000.

TRADE RECIPROCITY WITH FRANCE

Washington, To-day.

The Reconstruction Finance Corporation's gold fund has been increased from U. S. $75,000,000 to U. S. $100,000,000. Mr. Jesse Jones, Chairman of the Corporation states that the U. S. $75,000,000 fund is still far from exhaustion.

Domestic gold purchases so far total 507,485 ounces, valued at U. S. $16,976,000.

RACING PILOT'S MISHAP

Forced Down In Desert In Egypt.

LUCKILY SPOILED BY FRENCH RIVAL

Cairo, To-day.

The race for the "Doris Trophy," one of the biggest aerial Derbies ever organized, has begun over a circuit of 300 miles. Twenty-two competitors of various nationalities have already landed at a place 500 miles from Cairo.

The only other competitor, an Egyptian named Hazik, had a forced landing 50 miles west of Kharga in a spot so inaccessible that even camels cannot reach it.

He was luckily spoiled by a French pilot who reported the mishap. Two machines of the Egyptian Air Force proceeded in the spot and rescued Hazik uninjured. His damaged aeroplane will be repaired for flight later. — Reuters.

WORLD INCREASE IN PRICE POSSIBLE

TO PAY 64.5 CENTS AN OUNCE

12,000,000 OUNCES TO BE COINED ANNUALLY

HIGHER MONETARY RECOGNITION PROBABLE FOR SILVER

SPECIAL TO CHINA MAIL

(By Telegraph, Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1894. Received December 22, 9.58 a.m.)

WASHINGTON, TO-DAY.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT HAS RATIFIED THE LONDON SILVER AGREEMENT UNDER WHICH THE AMERICAN GOVERNMENT WILL PAY 64.5 CENTS PER OUNCE. IT PROVIDES THAT THE UNITED STATES MAY USE 24,000,000 OUNCES ANNUALLY, COINING HALF AND PLACING THE REMAINDER IN THE TREASURY.

Observers are slow to accept Speaker Rainey's statements as categorically representing Administration sentiment. They believe, however, that President Roosevelt will probably be forced to give silver some recognition as money in order to forestall a Congressional inflation rebellion.

Mr. Rainey's plan will probably satisfy all the silver advocates excepting a few who are insisting on re-monetisation at a fixed ratio, preferably 16 to 1. Without the silver advocates' support, the inflationists would be impotent.

DESPITE THE UNCHANGED GOLD PRICE, IT IS UNDERSTOOD THAT THE ADMINISTRATION IS CONSIDERING A MORE AGGRESSIVE PRICE BOOSTING PROGRAMME TO STRENGTHEN THE COMMODITY AND SECURITY MARKETS IF FURTHER LOSSES ARE SHOWN. — UNITED PRESS, PER S. C. GOLD BAR CO.

GOVERNMENT WILL COIN SILVER.

Treasury To Take Newly-Mined Metal.

Washington, To-day.

President Roosevelt's proclamation says that under authority granted him at the last session of Congress he has ratified the London Silver Agreement, which has already been put into effect by the Government of India.

The proclamation, in accordance with the Act of Congress, opens the United States mints to the coining of standard silver dollars from silver which is hereafter produced in the United States and its possessions, subject to the depositors of such silver surrendering to the Government one-half thereof a seigniorage and to cover all usual charges and expenses.

Dollars coined from one-half of such newly-mined silver will be returned to the depositor, and half surrendered to the Government to be retained by the Treasury. — Reuters.

RAISING PRICE OF SILVER.

Increased Buying Power Of Silver Countries.

Washington, Later.

The proclamation mentions that Senator Thomas' amendment authorises the President to de-value the gold or silver content of the dollar.

The President states that his investigations showed that it was necessary that the silver price should be enhanced and stabilised in order to assist in increasing and stabilising domestic prices, to augment the purchasing power of the people of the silver-using countries, and to protect the United States foreign commerce against the adverse effect of depreciated foreign currencies. — Reuters.

GOLD AND SILVER

Unfixed Ratio Favoured By Rainey.

SPECIAL TO CHINA MAIL

(By Telegraph, Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1894. Received December 21, 10.51 p.m.)

WASHINGTON, YESTERDAY.

Speaker Rainey, to-day charged Professor O. M. W. Sprague former adviser to the United States Treasury, with being more interested in British money policies than with those of the United States.

"Professor Sprague expects to remain in the United States to lead the fight against the President's policies," he declared.

Mr. Rainey expressed harmony with the Administration's programme.

"We cannot undertake to maintain the ratio between gold and silver, but there are ways of bringing gold and silver into circulation as money without giving either a fixed value in terms of the other," he said.

The statement is interpreted as favouring an un-fixed gold and silver ratio which the Administration would support. — United Press, per S. C. Gold Bar Co.

Text Of Roosevelt Proclamation.

The proclamation referred to the United States silver resolution passed at the World Economic Conference, and to the supplementary agreement between the silver producing countries, reached in London, and continued:—

"Now, therefore, finding it proper to co-operate with other Governments and necessary to assist in increasing and stabilising domestic prices, to augment the purchasing power of the peoples of silver-using countries, and to protect our foreign commerce against the adverse effect of depreciated foreign currencies, I direct that each United States mint shall receive for coining into standard silver dollars any silver which such mint is subject to coin in accordance with the regulations prescribed by the Secretary of the Treasury is authorized to coin into standard silver dollars." — Reuters.

SILVER RISE TO AID WORLD RECOVERY

Pittman Elated At Action.

STABILISATION OF WORLD PRICE?

Washington, To-day.

Senator Key Pittman, Chairman of the United States Senate Foreign Relations Committee, said that President Roosevelt's action meant an enormous increase in the United States export trade and would result in world-wide stabilisation of the silver price at 64.5 cents per ounce.

Senator Pittman is most elated at this "Christmas present" and said that he is confident that Canada, Australia, Mexico and Peru will act similarly and that the increased silver value will increase the exchange value of those countries to the same extent, including their buying capacity, which will aid the raising commodities' prices and tend greatly to half to the United States recovery and hasten a return to normal conditions. — Reuters.

Mints To Start Coinage.

Washington, To-day.

President Roosevelt has ordered the United States mints to coin half of the annual production of 24,000,000 ounces of silver for the benefit of producers.

The other half will be kept at the Treasury as reserve.

The White House has estimated that this will give a price of 64.5 cents per ounce, or half the legal price, and considerably above the market price.

Coinage will be subject to the producers' desire. If fully exercised, it will mean the coining of 13,900,000 silver dollars. — Reuters.

GEN. O'DUFFY RELEASED

Order By Supreme Court.

"DETENTION ILLEGAL"

Dublin, To-day.

General O'Duffy, leader of the Irish Free State National Guard, who was arrested on Sunday, at Westport, where he was scheduled to make a speech to a gathering of "Blue Shirts," is to be released immediately.

The order for release was made by the Judge of the Supreme Court, who is satisfied that General O'Duffy's detention is illegal.

No charge was preferred against General O'Duffy, but he was arrested on the grounds that he was wearing the uniform of the "Blue Shirts," an organisation declared illegal by the President of the Free State, Mr. Ramon De Valera. — Reuters.

He has been mined subsequently to the date of this proclamation.

"This proclamation will remain in force until December 31, 1937, unless repealed or modified by Act of Congress or a subsequent proclamation."

"The present ratio in weight for fineness of the silver dollar to the gold dollar shall be maintained until changed by further order of proclamation."

"Notice is hereby given that I reserve the right to revoke or modify this proclamation as the interest of the United States may require." — Reuters.

GERMAN AND FRENCH RELATIONS

"NO TERRITORIAL CONFLICT IF THE SAAR RETURNED"

SIR JOHN SIMON ATTACHES IMPORTANCE TO HITLER'S DECLARATION.

London, To-day.

The Foreign Secretary, Sir John Simon, delayed his departure for a short continental holiday until last evening, in order to take part in the discussion on foreign affairs which mainly occupied the attention of the House of Commons before the House yesterday afternoon adjourned for Christmas.

He remarked that there had been very prompt and vigorous efforts from more capitals than one since Germany's withdrawal from the Disarmament Conference. One of the most important things that had happened was that Chancellor Hitler had been making some declarations, by wireless and other means, which, whatever we might think of their contents, were of very great moment to all the world.

One declaration was of special interest to France. Almost at the same time as Germany withdrew Herr Hitler said:

"It would be of the first importance for the two nations if Germany and France could once and for all ban the use of force from their common lives. No territorial conflict exists between the two countries, so far as Germany is concerned, once the Saar is returned."

The British Government had been concerning themselves very actively with what was the real purpose of those declarations.

They had made it plain that, in making such inquiries, they were not expressing approval of some of the proposals.

Sir J. Simon, which had been thrown out or indicated. But it did appear to them that it certainly was their duty to do their utmost to clarify the situation and find out what really was behind it.

Inquiries had been very actively conducted and the British Ambassador in Berlin was asked to come to London and see the Government.

It appeared that, on the political side, of the technical questions of disarmament, Chancellor Hitler had made propositions which were certainly intended to be formal proposals, and that information published that he was suggesting non-aggressive pacts between Germany and her neighbours was justified.

As the Government understood it, the proposals under consideration did not contain anything which was particularly dangerous, but were not forward for consideration by all Germany's neighbours.

In dealing with the matter, the Government had been very careful to indicate they had not forgotten the obligations which rested on the members of the League of Nations, and therefore the form in which such pacts of non-aggression might be cast would have been considered in view of the undoubted obligations which such a covenant put on parties to it.

From Kospoyingto, to Langyuan, and an extension of the Chinchow-Peliao Railway to Jichol.

It is understood that construction of all three lines has already started. — Reuters.

Off The Forehead Hat Line

Definite Change In 1934 Predicted.

BRITISH MILLINERS FIRST TO INTRODUCE IT

The hat line of 1934 will most definitely be an off-the-forehead one. And we shall see these new bonnets far sooner than we realize. The French milliners have been "trying them out" for a couple of months, and even in October it was noticed that a smart woman here and there in Paris was wearing an extraordinary little hat which looked as though its owner had pushed it to the back of her head in a fit of abstraction. This was the new 1934 hat. Later, from a view of the mid-season collections, it was obvious that these hats had obvious that these hats had really "arrived."

But it was a young British milliner, Jeff, who first introduced this line to London as long ago as last August, when he showed some very attractive bonnet hats.

Flowered Necklines
Are New

Some evening frocks have a low neckline composed of flowers, and others carry large sprays of roses on the shoulder-caps or a disc of velvet which can be pinned on the gown anywhere on the bodice.

NON-SHINY CREAM FOR EVENING

Some of the best foundation creams allow that dread social sin "shiny nose." A lotion that saves the situation is called "Dancing" lotion, and it should be applied to the skin before the foundation cream or powder.

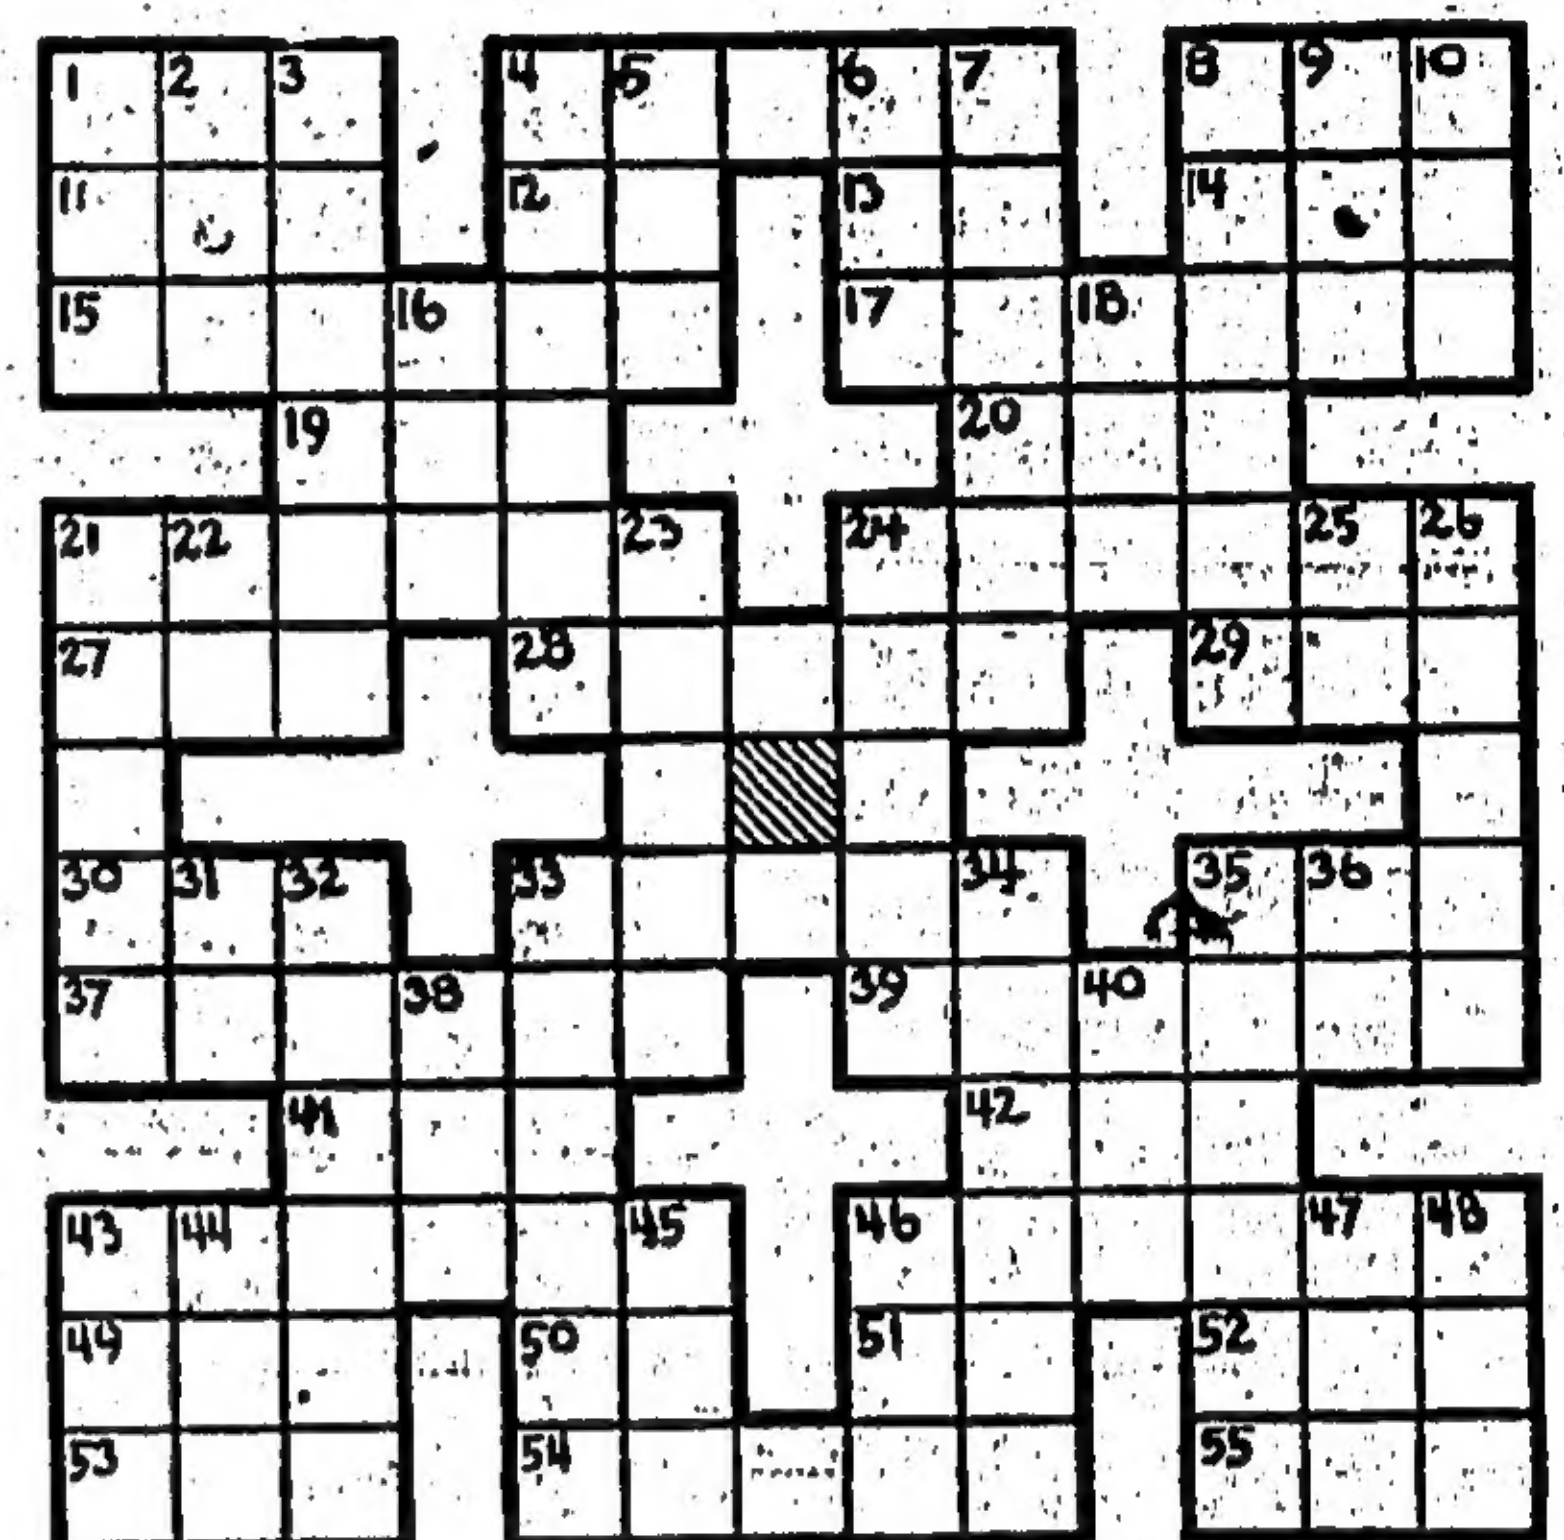

Dark browns are frequently mixed with cinnamon and iron grey with black. The latter colours in pin-striped linings look effective for a suit designed to go with a "Tommy Atkins" red cotton suede blouse made on a Guardsman's jacket-line with high neck and long sleeves.

BRIDGE NOTES

CONTRACT BRIDGE

BY ANCHORITE

XVIII

(This series of articles is based on Culbertson's system of bidding).

A TOURNAMENT BLUNDER

Bidding Out of Turn
Thirty-six Bridge masters engaged in a free-for-all struggle to decide Who was really Who. In the Individual Masters' Event in New York on September 15.

Perhaps the most amusing hand the big battle produced was one in which the South player, who, for obvious reasons, must remain unnamed, achieved a top score as a result of a bid out of turn plus a good guess:

West, Dealer
North and South vulnerable

North:
S—8 7 3
H—A 9 6 4
D—K 9 8 7 2
C—3

West:
S—
H—J 5 2
D—J 5 3
C—K Q J 8 5 4 2

East:
S—Q 10 6 5
H—K 10
D—Q 10 6
C—10 7 6 3

South:
S—A K J 9 4 2
H—Q 8 7 3
D—A 4
C—A

The South player, as soon as he picked up his hand, immediately became excited by the array of high cards, and bid one spade, when, much to his chagrin, he was told that he was not the Dealer. The Duplicate penalty for a bid out of turn when it is one's left-hand opponent's turn to bid is that the partner of the offender may not bid for the rest of the hand.

West, trying to make the most of the situation, and trying to make it hard for South, opened the bidding with one club, and East immediately bid two clubs. South, having no way of ascertaining what his partner held, knew that he must gamble and contract for game by himself. Accordingly, he bid four spades. West, not being vulnerable, immediately went to five clubs.

When it came round to South again, he decided that would go by the one reading he had on the hand, and that was that West had no defence. He decided to play this one bit of information he had to the hilt, and came out with the unusual call of six spades. In other words, on a hand containing about five potential losing tricks he bid a Slam all by himself.

A club was opened, South winning with the Ace, and then the Ace of spades disclosed the trump situation. Accordingly Dummy's two cards of reentry had to be used to finesse against East's Queen and Ten of trumps, leaving no further card of reentry to lead up to Declarer's heart Queen. However, on the Ace of hearts East dropped the Ten-spot, and Declarer knew that if East had either the Knave-Ten alone or the King-Ten alone the contract could be made, provided he guessed the situation. From the bidding he finally decided that East probably had the King of Hearts and, therefore, his only hope was it was now blank and would drop on the lead of a low card. Obviously, the low heart lead worked, and Declarer was able to fulfil his contract of six-odd.

SEA-SERPENT OFF VICTORIA

80-Foot Monster In Canadian Waters.

SEEN BY THREE PEOPLE

Victoria, British Columbia.
The sea serpent has appeared again. This time it has been seen by no less than three people—a Victoria lawyer, his wife and a yachtman.

The three were fishing in Cabot Bay, Vancouver Island when they saw a huge monster, 80 feet long, 20 feet thick and with the profile of a camel rear out of the water and scratch its neck on the barnacles of the rocks. Judging by what appeared to be a smile on the long undulating jaw, it appeared to enjoy itself immensely. The serpent then made off in the direction of Chatham Island, while the observers went to examine the abrasions on the rocks.

Following the announcement that the sea-serpent had been seen, a member of the Archives staff of the British Columbia Legislature has now come forward and declared that he, his wife and his son saw the same or a similar creature at the very place over a year ago, but had said nothing about it as they did not expect their story to be believed.—Reuter.

LIONS TERRORISE DARWIN DISTRICT

Three Natives Attacked Recently.

GOAT KRAAL RAIDED

Bulawayo.
Lions have been particularly active and daring in the Darwin district recently.

At Rusambo one got into a goat kraal and gorged to such an extent that he was unable to force his way out and was killed by the native owner of the kraal with an assegai.

At the Wild Dot Mine lions have been heard every night one was wounded by a trap gun after killing a donkey, and its spoor was followed by a party of natives. The lion suddenly sprang from the bushes and attacked them, one of the natives being badly mauled.

In the northern part of the district a native was cutting poles when a lion pounced on him and inflicted injuries from which he died shortly afterwards.

While a native was out walking with two dogs on a farm near Trelawney the dogs put up a leopard. The animal showed fight, and in order to save the dogs, the native attacked the leopard armed only with a knobkerrie, and after a desperate struggle succeeded in killing it.—Reuter.

Jardines took an early lead through White and increased it through Leo Frost, the champion jockey, the Club decreasing the arrears through E. Strange. In the second half Jardines scored again through Hill, but the Club swept on to victory as the result of goals from Duncan, Bickford and Howe.

CUMBERLAND WIN IN FLEET SOCCER LEAGUE

Proctor Scores Decider
Against Destroyers.

GOAL LEAD IN FIRST HALF

H.M.S. Cumberland defeated the Fourth Submarine Flotilla by 2 goals to 1 in the First Division of the China Fleet Football League at the Valley yesterday, after leading by a goal in the first half.

Play was very even throughout, but the Cumberland forwards showed more accuracy in attack. The Submarines enjoyed more than their share of the play in the second half, but failed to take the lead.

Potts scored for the Cumberland in the first half without reply.

Brandon replied for the Submarines in the second half, but Proctor clinched victory for the Cumberland in the closing stages.

H.M.S. Cumberland: Harman; Grant, Burden; Welsh, Ward, Kefford; Spencer, Tong, Potts, Proctor and Skinner.

Fourth Submarine Flotilla: Sidden; Barrell, Wright; Perkins, Blair; Savers; Ferris, Barnett, McKinnell, Glass and Brandon.

BERWICK JUNIORS RECOVER WELL

Share Six Goals With Kent In League.

THE H.M.S. Berwick second eleven made a splendid recovery against the H.M.S. Kent juniors in a Third Division Navy Soccer League match at the Valley yesterday when they shared three goals after being a goal down at the interval.

Cast and Hollingsworth scored for the Kent in the first half, Worthington replying for the Berwick. In the second half Hollingsworth increased the Kent's lead, but two fine goals by Breese and Lake equalised the score for the Berwick.

H.M.S. Berwick: Almond; Millen, Orlist, Keen, Kennedy, Braddon; Breese, Melford, Worthington, Lake, Williams.
H.M.S. Kent: Longley; Hartley, Armstrong, Heaps, Anderson, Lushott; Hollingsworth, Cast, Grady, Matthews and Bird.

LINCOLNS DRUMMERS WIN

In a junior soccer game the Drummers of the Lincolns defeated No. 3 Group by 6 goals to 2. For a Runners, Vassay and Wildy scored for the Drummers, while Maddison and Cooper replied for the Lincolns.

CLUB TEAM CHANGES FOR TO-MORROW

HYNES AT HALF BACK
AGAINST BORDERERS

HILL TO PARTNER STRANGE

(By OUTSIDE LEFT)

IN the enforced absence of L. G. Robertson, who is playing for the Club in the Triangular Rugby tournament, the Club's team to meet the Borderers to-morrow at Sookunpoo has been re-arranged.

Hynes, who has partnered S. Strange at full-back since the beginning of the season, will relinquish his position to Hill, the latest acquisition from Kowloon, and will move to the right half position vacated by Robertson.

Dominy, who was temporarily rested, is again to play at inside-right where he will partner Fowler.

THE Borderers will be having a very strenuous week-end as they represent practically the whole of the Welsh team for the Semi-Final encounter against England in the Sunday Herald International Charity Cup Competition on Monday.

To-morrow's football will probably be cautious and I am inclined to think that the Borderers will try and force an early lead and then play safe, reserving their energies for Monday's game.

Podmore will again be playing for his team in the pivot position, while Underwood, who has not played since his suspension, will probably play for Wales should any of the Borderers' men be crocked in to-morrow's game.

ENGINEERS WIN BY 6 TO 1

24th Battery Outclassed
In Small Units.

"HAT TRICK" FOR SLOAN

THE Royal Engineers beat the 24th Battery R.A. by 6 goals to 1 in a Small Units League football match at Happy Valley yesterday, after leading by 2 goals to 1 in the first half.

BUDDEN netted twice for the Engineers, but the Artillery decreased their arrears from a penalty taken by SMITH before the teams changed over.

In the second half the Engineers scored four times, SLOAN obtaining a "hat-trick" and HOLLINGS' WORTH netting their sixth point. The Artillery attacked dangerously on several occasions, C. Bailey bringing off many clever saves in goal.

Royal Engineers: C. Bailey; Tucker, Whitefield; J. Bailey, Lester, Wales; Whitting, Hollingsworth, Budden, Pegz and Sloan.
24th Battery R.A.: Willett; Morris, Woods; Hall, Burdett, Shaw; Scott, Carroll, Lowen, Smith and Hill.

CHINA SELECT STRONG XI

Portugal Without Fernandez.

ONE RECREIO PLAYER SHOULD BE INCLUDED

(By OUTSIDE LEFT)

The Chinese have selected a formidable team to meet Portugal in the Semi-Final round of the "Sunday Herald" International Charity Cup Competition on Boxing Day.

With the exception of Hor Chor-yin, right half, and Fung King-yu, outside left, both Athletic players, the balance of the team is entirely from South China.
Wong, Mei-shun, who comes before the Emergency Committee of the Hong Kong Football Association to-night has been selected for the inside-right position.

PORTUGAL SELECT TEAM TO MEET CHINA

Two Recreio Players

The following have been selected to represent Portugal against China in the Sunday Herald International Charity Cup competition on Boxing Day:—
R. Marques (St. Joseph's); R. Silva-Netto (Recreio) and L. Gomes (St. Joseph's); V. Marques (St. Joseph's); N. Beltrao (St. Joseph's); B. Gosano (St. Joseph's); A. Ward (St. Joseph's); A. V. Gosano (St. Joseph's) (Captain); L. Rocha (St. Joseph's) and J. Goncalves (Recreio).
Reserves:—E. Marques (Recreio), S. Sousa (St. Joseph's) and G. Gutierrez (Recreio).

Mullano and Morrison will be the main hurdles which the Club forwards will have to overcome, the halves lacking speed and therefore not presenting an unsurmountable obstacle.

Navy Challenge

The Navy, by virtue of their win over the East Lancers on Wednesday, are now in a challenging position to St. Joseph's and the Lincolns for the League leadership.

To-morrow they meet the Recreio and should garner two valuable points, while the Saints, who offer the most impressive challenge of any team in the League, meet the Athletic, who may jeopardise their chances.

The Saints will be without the services of Fernandez, their left-winger who was injured in last Saturday's League game.

The Lincolns, present League leaders, should consolidate their position with a win over the Artillery at the Valley.

On Sunday South China meet the East Lancers at Sookunpoo where they should also garner two points.

The following is my forecast with probable teams:—

JOHN ROBERTS, the Welsh international centre, three-quarter, will probably be invited to play for the Colony against the Australian Universities' Rugby fifteen.

RODGER AND INTERPORT

UNABLE TO GO IF SELECTED.

Best Goalkeeper In Hong Kong.

(By OUTSIDE LEFT)

G. Rodger, the Club and Interport goalkeeper, will be unable to make the trip to Shanghai with the Interport footballers, should he be selected.

This will come as a keen disappointment to soccer enthusiasts in the Colony as Rodger's abilities between the sticks are known throughout the East and his loss to the Interport side will be one that cannot be overcome with complete satisfaction.

SURPRISES IN ENGLAND'S SOCCER ELEVEN

Pile To Make Debut
At Half-Back.

LINCOLNS' LEFT WING PAIR PASSED OVER

(By OUTSIDE LEFT)

Considerable surprise has been occasioned by the selection of the England team for the "Sunday Herald" International Charity Cup encounter against Wales on Monday.

Ridley, recognised by the majority of soccer enthusiasts as one of the Colony's best inside lefts has been passed over in favour of E. Strange, while Bickford, an exceptionally promising player, replaces Hocquard on the left wing.

Langmead the Navy's brilliant centre forward, and Hudspeth, the Navy winger, have been given the right in support of Howe. Last year these two positions were filled by Woods and Bryant of the Artillery, both of whom have since left the Colony.

An excellent half-back line has been selected, Purkins of the Navy filling the right wing berth, with Cork of the Lincolns in the pivot position instead of Pardo, last year's skipper.

One of the biggest surprises, however, was the selection of C. Pile (Police) for the left-half position. Pile is a good fullback who has played forward, but he will be making his debut as a half.

LA SALLE GO NAP

NAVY PLAYERS

(By Scrum Half)

A REPRESENTATIVE RUGBY FIFTEEN SELECTED FROM THE CLUB, THE ARMY AND THE NAVY WILL PLAY AGAINST THE AUSTRALIAN UNIVERSITIES' TOURING TEAM ON THE CLUB GROUND ON THURSDAY, JANUARY 18, COMMENCING AT 4 P.M. A DINNER WILL BE HELD IN HONOUR OF THE VISITORS THAT NIGHT AND THE TOURISTS WILL THEN CONTINUE ON THEIR WAY TO JAPAN BY THE KITANO MARU.

Mr. S. H. Garrod, Hon. Secretary of the Rugby Section of the Hong Kong Football Club, informed me last night that he had received a cable from the Japanese Rugby Union to the effect that they were quite agreeable to the Australian tourists playing in Hong Kong on their way to Japan.

Though word had previously been received in Hong Kong that the tourists were agreeable to playing in the Colony on their way North, provided the Japanese authorities sanctioned the game, it was at one time thought improbable that the Japanese Rugby Union would jeopardise gate receipts by allowing the team to play en route.

News In Brief.

Sir Richard and Lady Needham have registered at Repulse Bay Hotel for the duration of the Christmas and New Year holidays.

The children of the Kowloon Junior School gave their annual entertainment yesterday in the West Lounge of the European Y.M.C.A., presenting a charming and well-rendered programme.

"It doesn't look as if he is going to celebrate Christmas, does it?" said Mr. E. W. Hamilton at the Central Police Court this morning, in imposing a fine of $38 on a lorry-driver, Tam Kwok Hang, for carrying four tons in excess of the weight limited to his lorry.

Owing to the preparations for the Holiday Gala Night Carnival Dinner Dances, as announced, the Management of the Repulse Bay Hotel announce the cancellation of the usual Tea Dances on December 24 and 25. Special Tea Dances will be held on Christmas Day, Boxing Day and New Year's Day, from 4.30 p.m. to 6.30 p.m.

Probable Lindy "Home Stretch"

The grand finale of the long aerial survey made by Colonel and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh may be a flight from Lisbon, Portugal, across the Atlantic to New York, via the Azores and Bermuda, according to an announcement by Colonel Lindbergh. Above is the route they probably would follow, which, in the opinion of experts, will be the ultimate air route for regular service to Europe.

RECEPTION AT HOTEL CECIL.

Nursing Division Of St. John's Brigade.

MRS. LANGLEY WELCOMED ON HER RETURN

Yesterday at 5 p.m. a reception was held at the Hotel Cecil by the Florence Nightingale Nursing Division of the St. John's Ambulance Brigade to welcome Mrs. Langley on her return from home leave.

Over 50 persons were present, including Mrs. A. Morris, Miss Kwok and Mrs. T. C. Yip, Hoahing, F. I. Tseung, H. H. Tai and H. S. Tai. Miss Molly Chan, the Head of the Division, welcomed Mrs. Langley and called upon Miss Dulcie Chan to say a few words.

Miss Dulcie Chan then spoke of the pleasure it afforded the members of the Division to see their officer back again, having evidently benefited by her trip and eulogised Mrs. Langley's work and her unflinching kindness and enthusiasm in all kinds of charitable work. She also paid tribute to the untiring services of Mr. A. Morris and the doctors connected with the Division. Mrs. Langley, after thanking all present gave a brief and interesting description of her trip, after which tea was served.

The Nobel Laureates

Bertrand Russell once remarked that a mathematician does not have to know what he is talking about. In honouring Professors Dirac, Schrodinger and Heisenberg the committee that awards the Nobel prizes in physics have recognized what has been achieved by men who care not what their X's and Y's stand for. The three new laureates are young, bold and imaginative. They either reject determinism, as Heisenberg does, or ignore it after the fashion of Schrodinger and Dirac. In short, a new method of studying the cosmos has been inaugurated, one which does away with strictly causal law, which substitutes chance for certainty and which therefore nullifies the time-honoured belief expressed in Omar Khayyam's dictum that "the first Morning of Creation wrote what the last Dawn of Reckoning shall read." An old-fashioned determinist might reason that because people break their fast on rising they obey a law of nature. The new school narrows the study, discovers that the "law" fails to hold the fewer the number of people involved, and fails utterly for single men and women who refuse to eat breakfast at all. So with the predictions and regularities of the universe. "Laws" in the universe are simply expressions of mass behaviour. Electrons in an atom turn out to be rugged individualists. Mathematics is essentially pragmatic. A theory need not be true. But it must work. And how the new theories do work! Schrodinger tells us that an electron is both a wave and a particle—something which would have made Kelvin and Maxwell shudder. But the experiments prove it is so. Dirac talks about a mathematical hole which is the direct opposite of the electron. Lo! the positron is discovered. Heisenberg decides that a particle cannot have position and velocity at the same time. Out of this uncertainty comes the satisfaction that we may be right half the time. Perhaps the old cosmos was too easy, a too incredible segment of the mind. The new may be one "which a reasonable man might almost believe," to quote Edington. For many the belief is fantastic. Luckily for them, Einstein and Planck, who helped to create the dissonance that shattered the old, will die that new peace for atoms physics, are of their way of thinking. Both sigh for the day when cause and effect will be enthroned again and the universe will move along in the old predetermined groove.

The Tariff Truce

Great Britain's recent withdrawal from the international tariff truce is largely sentimental in significance. At no time since it was first proposed by the American Government, on the eve of the London conference, has the truce been genuinely effective. Sixty-one nations agreed to it, pledging themselves not to adopt "any new initiatives" which would create further obstacles to trade. But they retained full liberty of action to perfect such controls as were already in existence. How little the truce meant, in these circumstances, is suggested by the fact that the United States, despite its authorship of the plan, is entirely free to levy additional duties or put "quotas" on foreign goods, if they are need to protect the domestic codes established under the N. R. A. It was the do-nothing nature of the truce which persuaded the Netherlands to renounce it in September. Other countries, including France and Sweden, followed suit. The action of the British Government means a further loss of prestige for it. That 1933 has been a bad year for international collaboration is apparent from the record. The tariff truce has disappointed those who saw in it the promise of a real armistice in the unremitting war which the nations of the world still wage on one another's commerce. The World Economic Conference was a flat failure. Little more can be said thus far for the Geneva conference on armaments. Both Germany and Japan, pursuing separatist policies, have announced their intention to withdraw from the League of Nations. The elaborate Washington conversations of last Spring seem now, in retrospect to have confused the situation they were meant to simplify. Public opinion in both creditor and debtor countries still blocks a rational discussion of the war debts. The new deal in American tariff policy, so enthusiastically promised by the Democratic Party, is conspicuous for its absence. Originally critical of the Republican dogma of economic isolation, a new government in the United States is experimenting with the doctrine of economic internationalism. While the world waits with anxious hope that Mr. Roosevelt will die that new peace for atoms

HERE, THERE and EVERYWHERE

Mr. William C. Bullitt

Mr. William C. Bullitt's appointment as the first American Ambassador to Soviet Russia is logical, if not inevitable.

There were many Democratic candidates for the post, and pressure was brought on President Roosevelt in favour of one or other of them.

Much has been said and written about Mr. Bullitt's secret mission to Russia in 1919 as the representative of President Wilson.

Curiously enough, very little importance was attached in Russia at the time to the visit. Several years later the incident was recalled to M. Tchichérin, then Soviet Commissary for Foreign Affairs.

M. Tchichérin looked puzzled. Finally he said vaguely:

"Yes, there was a young man who came to see us and said he represented Wilson. But we were very busy with other things."

After 14 Years

Mr. Bullitt returns to Moscow after 14 years, during which he has been successfully film producer, portrait painter, novelist, magazine-writer and assistant to the Secretary of State.

He is 42, was born in Philadelphia, is bald, clean-shaven and unassuming.

Ten years ago he married a beautiful New York journalist, Louise Bryant Reed. Her first husband, the American Communist poet John Reed, is buried under the wall of the Kremlin in Moscow.

BRITISH SPORTS CROWDS CRUEL?

PUBLIC DEMANDS ARE BECOMING GREATER

SPORTING ATMOSPHERE
GOING

We have reached a stage when the demands on our leaders in every field of sport have become so exacting that only those with brains of ice and bodies of steel and whiplash can hope to stand the strain.

Our cricketers, and those of Australia, were very near the verge of complete breakdown more than once during the last series of Tests in Australia. Test cricket is no longer a game. It is a stern and relentless fight.

What is to happen next season in England?

Gordon Richards, our champion jockey, is now approaching the end of a season that has taxed his exceptional physique to a point when only grim resolve made life endurable. I believe it is strictly true that in the last fortnight before he broke Fred Archer's record of 246 winners in a season he was "living on his nerves."

With the Davis Cup in England's possession, our tennis players will have to be keyed up to the highest effort.

The Wightman Cup (lawn tennis), the Walker Cup (golf) will be fought for in this country in 1934 in an orgy of sport that will be insistent in its demands on those who take part in it—and only a little less so on those who watch.

I would not have any of our athletes in any field approach their task without every necessary qualification of physical well-being and skill and endeavour.

But our crowds have grown so prodigiously as to make the plans and forecasts of ten years ago for their accommodation appear feeble and ridiculous, and the psychology of these multitudes is undergoing a subtle change.

When disappointments have come, the shadow of bitterness and acrimony has crept a little farther and farther over the sun of laughter and cheerfulness.

Temperamental Athletes

There is no one quicker to react to "atmosphere" than the highly trained athlete. The history of the past is full of instances—grave and gay.

The British public placed Bombarrier Billy Wells upon a pedestal from which neither Georges Carpentier nor Joe Beckett permanently removed him. I always felt that the worship of the crowd was a primary cause of some of Wells's tragic failures.

I did not go like wine to his head; it filled him with too great a sense of his responsibility. "I had a wonderful public," he told me the other day; "I cannot think of anyone who had a better." And if a miracle of science could give him back twenty years, the public would be behind him again.

Happily, he did not have the soul-searing experience of George Carpentier on that dreadful Sunday in

Wembley Scenes Recalled

The present system of an all-ticket F. A. Cup Final was a sequel to the extraordinary scenes at Wembley in 1923, when barriers were swept away and 50,000 more people than could be given their allotted places were inside the arena. The vivid green of the grass was blotted out by a seething mass of black. Only the presence of the King and the miracle worked by a policeman on a white horse saved the first Cup Final at Wembley from disaster.

Bolton Wanderers defeated West Ham by two goals to none, but there are men who took part in the match who would not have played again under similar conditions for £1,000 apiece.

REICHSTAG FIRE TRIAL VERDICTS THREE BULGARIANS ACQUITTED.

TO BE ESCORTED TO FRONTIER

Van Der Lubbe Condemned To Death

Berlin, To-day.
Chancellor Hitler, and the Prussian Commissioner, General Hermann Goering, were yesterday informed of the verdict of the Reichstag fire trial.

It is learned, from a usually trustworthy source that the verdict condemns Van der Lubbe to death and acquits the three Bulgarians on grounds of lack of evidence.

The verdict also acquits Torgler on the charge of incendiarism, but it is understood that the Court will hold him for a new trial with other Communists on a charge of high treason.

Upon acquittal, Dimitroff, Popoff and Taneff, will be handed to the Prussian political police who will be responsible for their safety until they reach the German frontier, in view of rumours that certain Nazi extremists have proposed that the three Bulgarians be not allowed to reach the frontier alive.

It is understood that both Chancellor Hitler and General Goering have expressed their determination to see the Bulgarians safely out of Germany.

It is pointed out that General Goering will be blamed abroad for any untoward incident in consequence of his heated remark to Dimitroff in the course of the trial, "Wait until we get you out of the power of this Court." — Reuter.

The Reichstag fire trial opened at the Leipzig Supreme Court on September 21. Five men were charged with the offence, including Van der Lubbe, a Dutch youth, who created a sensation on November 22 by exonerating his fellow-prisoners.

"I alone was responsible for setting fire to the Reichstag," he declared, and made an impassioned appeal for the trial to be brought to a speedy conclusion, even if the sentence of death were passed on him.

Throughout the trial, Van der Lubbe's behaviour has been peculiar, and the question of his mental condition was brought up on several occasions.

NANKING PLANES OVERDUE

Failed To Return From Fukien Reconnaissance.

TROOP MOVEMENTS REPORTED

Hangchow, To-day.
According to further reports given by pilots of scouting planes returning from Northern Fukien last night, the rebels appear to attach importance to the route from Sha-Pu to Foting where large numbers of rebel troops are concentrating. Pingyuen, in the south-eastern corner of Chekiang, appears to be their immediate objective.

Two Nanking planes which left for the front yesterday morning to carry out a reconnaissance, had not returned at a late hour last night. Their long absence is causing anxiety.—Central News Agency.

JAPANESE PROBLEM IN FUKIEN.

Evacuation Necessary Before Bombardment.

SIGNIFICANT TALK IN NANKING.

Nanking, To-day.
Considerable attention is given to a report that Mr. Suma, the newly-appointed Japanese Consul-General at Nanking, is proceeding to Foochow. Speculation is rife as to whether his visit is in connection with the evacuation of Japanese and Formosan residents from the interior of Fukien.

It is reported that Admiral Chen Shao-kun discussed this matter with Marshal Chiang Kai-shek in a recent interview. Admiral Chen is stated to have stressed the importance of evacuating Japanese residents from the danger zones before naval operations could be effectively carried out against the rebels.—Central News Agency.

In Reich Trial

Here are the principal defendants in the trial at Leipzig, Germany, which has aroused international interest. At top is Ernst Torgler, former Communist leader in the German Reichstag, and below, Marinus Van Der Lubbe, a Dutch painter, who are accused of the plot that resulted in the burning of the Reichstag Building.

TIBETAN PROBLEM CAUSES CONCERN

Ruler Wanted To Succeed Dalai Lama.

DANGER OF STRIFE

Peking, To-day.
The local Tibetan community is seriously concerned over the death of the Dalai Lama which, it is generally thought, will lead to widespread strife in Tibet if a proper successor to the late spiritual ruler cannot be found.

It is suggested that the existing religious rules should be strictly adhered to in the process of selecting a successor, if the present order of things in Tibet is to be preserved.

The alternative is, that the Central Government be asked to send a High Commissioner to Tibet to assist in settling the problem.

It is learned that Panshen Lama, who is staying in Mongolia, is prepared to proceed to Nanking early next year to consult the Nanking Government in regard to this matter.—Central News Agency.

U.S. GOLD FUND INCREASED

A Franco-American "compromise" agreement has been reached whereby France will permit the import of 20,000 tons of American apples and pears regardless of tariffs and import tax rates, while the United States will permit France import not more than double the minimum quota of 784,000 gallons of wine.—Reuter.

The proclamation will remain in force until December 31, 1937, unless repealed or modified.

The President, after referring to India's ratification of the Agreement, said that he understood that the other nations concerned were about to act.

He believed that adherence would achieve stability of the silver price and permit the law of supply and demand to govern.—Reuter.

Sales Restricted.

The London Silver Agreement, formulated by Senator Key Pittman, Chairman of the United States Senate Foreign Relations Committee, was the only agreement resulting from the World Economic Conference, which Senator Pittman attended as one of the American delegation.

All the leading silver-producing countries are party to the Agreement, which restricts sales of the metal including Mexico, Canada, and America, while China and India also signed the agreement. The present price of silver on the New York Market is around 44 cents.

NEWFOUNDLAND DEBT

Exchange Into New Stock.

ROYAL ASSENT TO BILL

London, To-day.
The Newfoundland Bill received royal assent yesterday, and an offer is made to the holders of various Newfoundland obligations to change them into the new guaranteed three per cent. stock, repayable in whole or in part at par on July 1, 1935, or, at the option of Newfoundland, on or after July 1, 1943, on three months notice being given.

The principal, interest and sinking fund are guaranteed by the British Treasury.

Stock will have a sinking fund of one per cent. per annum on the total nominal amount issued, the first payment being made not later than July 1, 1935.

The exchange will be on the basis of $100 of new stock for every $100 of existing sterling bonds or stocks, or in case of dollar bonds, with the right to make payment in sterling for every $100 of nominal sterling equivalent at a rate of $1-U.S.$4.86-2/3.

Application for exchange must be made not later than July 31, 1934.

Excepting for inter-Governmental advances and securities which are to be repaid in exchange, the offer applies to the whole public debt of Newfoundland including those securities which rank as trustee issues in Britain.—British Wireless Service.

The Government had also been in very close contact with those best informed on the French attitude.

TO SEE FRENCH FOREIGN MINISTER TO-DAY

Inquiries and discussions between the various Governments and capitals had been going on and were now continuing.

Sir John Stated he would see the French Foreign Minister in Paris possibly to-day. They were in constant communication and it was extremely important that they should get as closely together as they could in understanding how the suggestions put forward by the German Government stood in regard to the policy and requirements of Germany's neighbours.

It was impossible to make any explicit declaration when conversations were being pursued. There was, however, a moment coming when undoubtedly these different inquiries must be gathered together, to see what result they produced.

The disarmament Conference was adjourned so that these inquiries might be made, but it was hoped to resume the Conference in January, when statements must be made as to their results.

Sir John quite agreed they did not want to depart from the system of international negotiations in favour of merely bilateral discussions. He could not regard, at this stage, bilateral communications as other than an intermediate or preliminary stage which ought to lead

Today's Short Story.

IF A MAN MIGHT TARRY

By Sir Max
Pemberton.

I NEVER walk down Holborn and come to the old houses that stand over against Gray's Inn but I think of handsome Ben Calderon and of little Kitty Mervin that was to have married him just about one hundred and forty years ago.

What a priceless survival is this of the old gabled crookedness—tapestries all awry, and little squares of glass, speaking of the London of Pepys and Bludworth. So they stood when Charles rode in—so they were the ornament of the city—"without the Bars" when Raleigh went to execution, and taking the cup of sack they offered him, remembered another who had gone to the gallows before him and drank also he went. "As the fellow," said he, "that drinking of St. Giles's bowl as he went to Tyburn, said 'that were good drink if a man might tarry by it.'"

To be sure, everybody set down these words to Ben Calderon, and if everybody says that he uttered them—well, everybody must be right, though some of us who have read the old records think differently.

Oddly enough, I thought of Ben not a week ago when upon my way to visit a prosaic solicitor who dwells in that garden of legal bliss which is but a stone's throw from Southampton Row.

There were the old houses, all huddled up together and leaning one upon another, as though to say "how tired we are after all these centuries." And there, looking from one of the tiny casements, was Kitty Mervin herself—at least, she to a wider international application. Regarding the inspection of armaments, he understood that the German Government, as part of their general scheme, were prepared to contemplate the establishment of international inspection and control of armaments of all countries, operating periodically and automatically.

In this respect there had undoubtedly been advance in public opinion generally.

Regarding the League of Nations, the Foreign Secretary reiterated that British policy was unwaveringly to stand by and support the League. Whilst they observed the declarations made in foreign countries indicating a desire for the revision of the League, they had no reason to suppose that any definite proposals were being advanced. He did not know of any.—British Wireless Service.

Hailing U. S. Envoy to Soviet

William Phillips (left) Ambassador of the United States to the Soviet Union, and George F. Kennan (right) Assistant Secretary of State for European Affairs, are seen in conversation with the Soviet Ambassador to the United States, Maxim Litvinov, following formal reception of that envoy by the United States. Phillips recently returned from a mission to the Soviet Union.

seemed to my willing-imagination to be the very re-incarnation of that Kitty who, as I say, was so notorious for her beauty just one hundred and forty years ago.

Really, for the moment, I was tempted to lift my hat to her and to express my sympathy with the beautiful child who had suffered so many misfortunes.

"Kitty," I would have said, "you fell in love with a dashing lad for your sins, and when you begged his life of that old madman, George III, you received a scurvy answer enough. Of course, it was a disgraceful thing for your Ben to have taken to the road after he lost all his money at the gaming house in St. James's Street. Nevertheless, my pretty child, he was a gentlemanly fellow enough, robbed neither the widow nor the orphan, took money chiefly from the fat producers of his day and spent it with a lavish

TO-MORROW'S STORY

To-morrow's story will be "Anna's Marriage," by Pauline Smith.

hand. His arrest, my dear, as you know, was the unhappy result of a most unfortunate mistake. Perceiving two figures in black cloaks upon Finchley Common, he mistook them for those of the Bishop of Ely and his chaplain, whereas, by dire misfortune they were those of two of the Bow Street horse-patrol, but recently put upon the Great North Road. What happened afterwards is too sad for me to speak of intimately. The tears you shed at the trial; the good things you sent into Newgate for Ben, the poor boy; the way you fainted when the dread sentence of the law was carried out—why speak of all this in the year 1937? Besides, most beautiful creature, are you not merely the ghost of the Kitty of yesterday—and if I were to ascend the crooked stairs which led to your sacred chamber, might I not discover that you, like your angelic predecessor in that very apartment, are an actress at the King's Theatre in Drury Lane, if it be but a role most humble? Even, Kitty, I might find you at a typewriter, and that would be the end of all things. No, my dear, as between you and me, we will leave the story where it is, but for these others, our readers—well, they might wish to know something more, for indeed, it is a pretty narrative."

I say that this beautiful creature stood at the window just as the real Kitty stood so many years ago. If her thoughts concerned the theatre, then would the coincidence be most wonderful—for you must know that the real Kitty sang in the opera of George's day, though in a humble capacity, I fear, if not without notoriety.

Twice a noble lord, Ben Calderon's uncle, attempted to have her kidnapped and failed humiliatedly. An earl, they say, offered to make her his mistress and might have made her his wife if his cousin, the Bishop of Ely, had not painted such a picture of the hell which awaits earls who marry chorus ladies that the old gentleman left off drinking and took instead to his lordship's sermons. Then there is her portrait painted by Sir Joshua Reynolds himself, and Charles James Fox's praise of her beauty, and Boswell's gossip, and a hundred other witnesses to her charm and her prettiness. No wonder the town wept with her when the crisis came.

So this was the young fellow in whose arms she had lain while earls and lords were courting her—this gambler, this galloway bird, this pretty villain of the piece—this her true lover; this her secret. London heard of it with wonder, and the noble earls with fine oaths. All was consternation at Old Drury when she played. How the groundlings cheered her the night after the arrest! Ballads were made and sung. Ministers delivered homilies from pious pulpits—the gamblers of St. James's were ready to wager that Ben Calderon would sing at Tyburn within the week, and nobody would take their money. A tragic business, truly, a terrible example of the folly of youth, and the penalty which folly brings down. I have mentioned poor Ben's kidnapping, and a poignant note struck upon pianoforte while he spoke of the matter.

When Women Choose Gifts for Smart Men...

THEY choose at the store where smart men buy... that is if they're smart. A man always looks for the label and if it's from his favourite store his appreciation of the gift and his admiration for your judgment increases tenfold. And whether or not they knew this was his favourite store women with the unerring, feminine instinct for quality at a price would come here anyhow.

Palace she went, to the houses of the judges, even to that miserable habitation in Brooke Street where lived the old mother of Will Roker, who was Ben's jailer at Newgate. A full hour she spent with this poor old woman and affecting enough the interview appeared to be—for there were tears in the eyes of both women when they parted, and the elder kissed the younger as though she had been truly her mother.

"Will would have a devil's heart to resist me," said the poor old creature as Kitty left her at the door of the cottage, though what was to be asked of Will, or why he should resist, no record is written. Suffice it to say that Kitty returned to the old house by "Holbourn Bars," and having tarried there a little while, went thence to Newgate and was no more heard of at her own home until the appointed hour of execution, when they saw her at her window—even as I fancied to see her stand yesterday—and the great bouquet of roses went hurrying down into the very cart which carried poor Ben Calderon to Tyburn.

So they had failed then, the most reverend the Bishop, his lordship the Earl, and those about the Royal presence who had been so ready to offer mediation. Even at the eleventh hour Ben's friends had hoped; but their hope was vain. "An example must be made," said Farmer George. The sons of the aristocracy must be taught a lesson—in brief, Ben must die. And so the bell of St. Sepulchre's was tolled as usual, Holborn was lined by eager people, the George Inn crammed with Ben's friends, and the cup prepared as it had been beyond the memory of the oldest. And when Ben lifted it he used the words we have written.

"A pleasant drink if a man might tarry by it!"
Poor boy!—there was to be but a brief tarrying for him. And yet men said that he looked the merriest lad, frail and mincing in his figure, though he wore a nodd cape which had come out of Old Drury's and a fester's cap, close-fitting upon his ears—as, he said, for Kitty's sake. "We have played Harlequin and Columbine together," he told them, "and is not death the great jest of them all? Let me get to heaven with a laugh—or never will I get there at all," and they humoured him, Will Roker above them all, since the power was his and the keys of the prison were in his hands.

"Then, must I say to-day as thou never didst before, my lad," said the jailer merrily, "if thou wouldst come through old Ned's hall safely, still, I'll not galloway you. Yet the people laugh—his better than thou shouldst go with them, though I doubt not, thy Kitty will weep sorely enough this day and many a day to come."

nothing of the kind—for Kitty was not of the weeping sort—and sure enough she showed a smiling face enough when the death-cart rumbled by her home and she flung her bunch of roses straight at her lover's heart.

"Bravo, Kitty girl!" cried the multitude of people—and a bravo was heard even from the sour old lawyers who stood at the gate of Gray's Inn or lounged about the purlieu of Fetter-lane. These had looked for the "vapours," or some other womanly evidence of despair, but Kitty was brave above the best of them, and to Harlequin was she loyal even in that grave hour. Not until the procession had passed from her sight did she quit the window—and then it was as one sore pressed for time, who had a great work to do and but little leisure in which to do it. Holburn, indeed, saw her no more for many a long day—there was no pretty figure at that ancient window to which the gallants used to lift their caps. And oddly enough, none lamented her absence—which is the strangest thing in all this curious story.

But we are forgetting poor Ben, whose bones were now rattled over the stones as they hurried him to Tyburn, and for whom the sun would soon cease to shine and the radiance of a summer's day exist no more. By St. Giles he went and so into the Oxford road at the beginning of the lane to Tottenham—for there was no New Oxford street in those days—and coming out at length into the open country about the spot where New Bond-street now begins, he discovered Tyburn in the distance and the three-legged yallows, wherefrom so many thousands had gone to read aright the riddle of the ages. Ben paled at the sight of this fearful implement of death, and his little white hand clutched the chaplain's arm timorously.

"Courage, my lad," said the good priest, "courage—it will soon be over now and you in a better world."

"But I like this world very well, thank you," rejoined Ben, and of that retort the worthy parson could not approve at all.

"Think of your sins," he went on dramatically. "Bear up—be a man."

"Oh," says Ben, "I can't be a man if I'm a girl, can I?"
"My lad!—my lad!—this is no hour to jest."

"But it's true," persisted the alleged Ben—and this happened at the very moment the cart drew up under the gallows—"I'm not Ben Calderon—I'm Kitty Mervin, who's going to be his wife."

Off went Harlequin's cap—down came the pretty hair—up flew the parson's hands.

"Merciful heaven!" he cried. "But we can't hang you."
"Thank you for that," says Kitty, and very nimbly she leaped over the side of the cart and disappeared into the crowd amid a roaring of voices, cheers, laughter, boots such as Tyburn never had heard in all its long and wicked history.

BRITISH SPORTS CROWDS CRUEL?

It was the intense activity of the crowd at Troon in 1925 coupled with the acute mental strain of a grim fight for the women's golf championship that caused the collapse of Miss Wethered and Miss Cecil Leitch when the last hole had been played.

Macdonald Smith, the American, might have won the open championship at Prestwick in the same year if he could have rid himself of the thoughts of the presence of 15,000 spectators.

He was a broken man long before the finish, and James Barnes carried off an honour he had deemed lost.

The sympathies of a packed court at the old Wimbledon lawn tennis ground were all with Mrs. Lambert Chambers in her famous fight with Suzanne Lenglen in 1919.

It was Max Decugis who helped the French girl to her first victory. He ran on to the court and publicly embraced her, passed to her lumps of sugar from the baseline, gave to her the courage she so badly needed and which never failed her later.

Public More Exacting

Each year, in every sport, the demands of the public are becoming greater and greater. Wimbledon, Lord's, Twickenham, Wembley, Hampden Park, are already as inadequate as their pre-war predecessors.

The crowds, too, are becoming increasingly insistent in their desire to see a higher standard of human achievement, and sporting contests are losing their atmosphere of sport and becoming gladiatorial combats.

If this attitude continues I am very much afraid that our men and women champions of 1933 will have to be robots with nerves of steel.

The British public has been very faithful to its heroes. It will not long remain so if it loses its air of laughing tolerance, good-humoured criticism, and its intense earnestness to see fair play as in the days when W. G. Grace strode our cricket fields, the Dohertys dominated our tennis courts, or when Dave Gallaher's team of All Blacks made our Rugby tactics an outworn garment.

For he it was who stood at the window of the old house in Holborn when the cortege went by, he who flung the flowers into the cart, he who kissed his hand to Kitty.

They were far away from London that night, sleeping in an old inn by Royston Common, report says. Influence stilled a hue and cry, and Ben got away to France ultimately, with the pretty baggage for his luggage.
Yet I doubt if he tarried there—for this was a man of good adventure, as we have seen.
